The number of children between the ages of five and fifteen, as returned by the selectmen, is—boys, 253; girls, 244; whole number, 497.

During the past year several innovations have been made in school management that we believe have been advantageous and trust will continue to meet your approval. The general superintendence of the schoolroom work has been under the direction of one person instead of three. The classification of the scholars, the methods of instruction, and the general range of discipline has been in his charge, with the approval of his associates. This arrangement required the official visiting of the schools to be done by one person at a time, instead of three, and the course pursued has been in no wise unintentionally contradicting, and essentially the most economical and practical method.

A carefully prepared course of study has been in successful operation during the entire year, and its workings have been more satisfactory than even the most sanguine had been encouraged to hope. So far as we know, it has met the hearty approval of teachers, pupils and parents alike. By it, pupils are enabled to enter the Academy a year in advance of the course there, without loss of time or expense. More attention than ever before has been paid to an approved and uniform method of instruction throughout the town. Special attention has been urged and paid to mental arithmetic, reading, writing, and language, both oral and written. That an interest might be awakened in the attention to questions of civil government, both on the part of teachers and pupils, "five hundred practical questions in civics" have been introduced. The interest in singing exercises in many of the schools has been very marked. Parents have not as yet, we regret to say, been as forward to visit and observe the workings of the schools as their best interests demand. Both teachers and pupils have taken a deep interest in methods, such as few towns yet furnish, and their zeal deserves the encouragement that only this outward expression of interest can give. Efforts have been wholly directed to provide a means of practical education, to the detriment of mere outward show or entertainment, and if such merits the approval of all good citizens, duty demands it should be indicated.

Your Board has deemed it inadvisable to expend money that was needed for the running expenses of the schools, for repairs to unused schoolhouses. It is essential that the outside of several schoolhouses be painted at once, and it is hoped you will make a special appropriation for that purpose. While other towns are annually appropriating considerable sums of money for general school expenses, Pembroke has had an ample amount without such action.

The attention of the citizens of the town is respectfully invited to a matter in regard to an improvement of our schools, whereby it is thought much more can be realized from the amount of money expended than has ever been. Parents should be more communicative with the school board. It has always been customary whenever reports not in accordance with some parents idea about a school has been heard to take their children out of school without investigating the rumors or asking the authorities to remedy them. If such parents would report whatever appears to them injudicious in the conduct of a school, this town has never had a committee that would not give the grievances their prompt attention, and endeavor to adjust matters in the best way their judgement prompts. Schools are supported for the benefit of all the children; the expense of their maintenance is practically no greater if all avail themselves of their privileges than if only a few and no reasonable school officer if cognizant of the facts will allow matters to be conducted in a way that is not beneficial to all the pupils. Parents, if you wish to realize the most for your hard earned taxes possible, promptly inform the school board of what conduct regarding your schools is unsatisfactory and before allowing your children to loose school in available advantages, give them a reasonable opportunity to correct whatever is a grievance to you. This every citizen interested enough in schools to accept of the office is anxious to do. The greatest drawback to the most successful conduct of your schools is irregular attendance, until something is done to remedy it, your school system will always be extravagant. In most cases, the board have been able to retain the old teachers and to them and the many faithful pupils should be given the credit of having more fully got the worth of the school money than in any previous year to our knowledge.

The thanks of the board are extended to all who have assisted them in making the schools as successful as they have been during the year.
